This service is designed for all disciplines of the performing arts disciplines of music, dance, and drama.

The subscription service is extremely low-priced so it can be afforded by the vast majority of American performing fine arts students. However, for those students that are considered at-risk or underserved ScholarshipAuditions.com created the SOAR Program. ScholarshipAuditions.com supports these students by providing all aspects of the ScholarshipAuditions.com platform to them and their parents at no cost for the student’s entire high school career. In addition, the Company provides supportive resources to the teachers of these students; again, at no cost. A student enters the SOAR Program on the recommendation of their music teacher.

ScholarshipAuditions.com has also made available the SOAR Program to the entire performing arts student body of the school if designated as a Title I school. Enrollment in the SOAR program is by application from one of the teachers in the Title I school. ScholarshipAuditions.com also works with non-profit organizations that have musical outreach to these underserved and/or at-risk students. Again, the entire platform is provided complimentary to these students and their parents.
